

Networking

Networking

If you have several computers in your business you would benefit from a computer network.Â

For example, installing a computer network can improve efficiency and productivity through:

- The ability to share printers and other peripheral devices means expenditure on such devices can be reduced.
- Staff being able to deal with more customers/clients at the same time by accessing centrally held customer databases.Â
- Key company information held and maintained on a central server means all staff can access and share one up-to-date version.
- Staff can share a single internet or broadband connection, and thus all have access to email.

If you have five or more computers then a server-based network provides even more benefits.

Â

Â
Â